First Nations Gallery 4-8

North America is called Turtle Island by many First Nations groups because in many creation stories the continent was formed on the back of a turtle.

There are more than 53 distinct Native languages spoken in Canada.

The light in the Gallery is dim because light is hard on the artifacts.

That's unbelievable!

Between 1830 and 1879 the average "buffalo hunter" could kill 250 bison a day.

The first bison-hide tipi in 100 years made in Saskatchewan using traditional methods was created for this Gallery.

In the first part of the trapping display, the dog noises you hear were made by a Museum employee.

The North West Mounted Police marched 1600 km in 1874 from Dufferin, Manitoba to the Rocky Mountains.
